Spotted... IN LONDON: Pussycat Doll and Cats actress NICOLE SCHERZINGER at Flemings hotel, Mayfair... IN NEW YORK: Actress JENNIFER LAWRENCE braving the cold in Manhattan

ACTRESS Carey Mulligan believes having no family members in the industry helps her retain her sense of perspective. And as a result the 29-year-old says she's constantly aware of people who aren't as fortunate as she is. "In no small way does being a successful actor give you perspective on things," she tells Elle.com. "However no one in my family works in the film industry so I'm constantly reminded of the rest of world not being as fortunate as I am." Carey, who leads a quiet life with her musician husband Marcus Mumford when she isn't filming, adds: "I have a lovely life and everything is good for me but I never forget parts of the world that are struggling. So when I have time off, I investigate that and talk about it." The star recently became the Global Ambassador for Warchild, a charity that protects children living in the world's most dangerous war zones.

WHILE most dads get unimaginative items like socks or pyjamas for the festive season, Doctor Who boss Steven Moffat's family get him "out-of-this-world" Christmas gifts. The writer and producer says his wife Sue Vertue and their young sons Louis and Joshua use his long-running sci-fi show as inspiration for his presents. "My wife got me a Dalek for last Christmas," says Steven, 53. "It's in the corner of my office. I never got a Dalek as a kid but I got one as an adult. I don't think I ever got a big Doctor Who thing when I was a kid."

SOME of the stars of Formula One have been swapping cars for cameras and will be auctioning off their best efforts in aid of Great Ormond Street Hospital. The likes of newly crowned BBC Sports Personality of the Year Lewis Hamilton, Jenson Button and Nico Rosberg have taken photographs which can be bought at the Zoom Annual Photographic Auction at London's Intercontinental Park Lane hotel on January 16. Lewis, 29, has offered a snap, far right, he took in the US, along with the caption: "Colorado mountains: 'Let life flow like a river, follow the path it takes you down. Take it as it comes & whilst you learn along the way, may you help guide the flow in the direction of your dreams.'"
